PARRY, JOHN DOCWRA. Adm. pens. at PETERHOUSE, Oct. 15, 1818. Of Bedfordshire. Matric. Michs. 1819; B.A. 1824; M.A. 1827. C. of Aspley Guise, Beds., 1827. Of Brighton, in 1833. Author of works on Bedfordshire, Woburn, and the coast of Sussex. The D.N.B. mistakenly gives 'probably died in 1833.' The 'Peel papers' in the British Museum contain letters from him to Sir Robert Peel, from which it is clear that he was still living in July, 1845, and probably in July, 1846. The following passages are particularly revealing: 'I place these extracts from The Builder in your hands—merely adding that, as I have really studied the subject, as regards London churchyards, I may yet write much more, with some chance of utility. I will not enlarge on my own distress—merely assuring you that it has lately been great—and that, as I am in great danger at 46 of sinking into premature old age and helplessness, it is really a fit case for sympathy.... An M.A. of Cambridge, but not having succeeded in the church [perhaps unfrocked, which would explain his absence from the Clergy List], I have published 5 or 6 works—several topographical ones, one an illustrated collection of ancient poetry [The Legendary Cabinet], the last a work on Brighton and Sussex at the expense of £700, by which I have been ruined.... Through this I have been compelled to relinquish the Portsmouth Herald, a paper which at my own risk I turned from a neutral or semi-Whig to an efficacious Conservative one. My family—an ancient one—was connected with the Bedford family.' His History of Woburn was issued under the patronage of the Duke of Bedford. (G. T. Hales; T. A. Walker, 405; D.N.B.)

PORCHESTER, LORD (1886), see HERBERT, GEORGE E. S. M.

PORSON, RICHARD. Adm. pens. (age 18) at TRINITY, Mar. 28, 1778. [Eldest] s. of Huggin (worsted-weaver and parish clerk), of East Ruston, Norfolk (and Anne Palmer). [B. Dec. 25, 1759. Schools, Bacton, Happisburgh and Eton.] Matric. Easter, 1778; Scholar, 1780; Craven Scholar, 1781; B.A. (3rd Senior Opt.) 1782; 1st Chancellor's medal, 1782; M.A. 1785. Fellow, 1782-92. Regius Professor of Greek, 1792-1808. His rare promise attracted the notice of the Rev. T. Hewitt, who educated him with his own sons, and of Mr John Norris, of Wotton Park, who sent him to Eton. First became widely known by his Letters to Travis, 1788-9, the outcome of theological study undertaken in order to decide whether he should take Holy Orders; he decided against this and, as a result, his Fellowship lapsed. Lived for some time in poverty, but helped by friends. The Porson prize (1816) and Porson Scholarship (1855) were subsequently founded from funds collected for him during this time. Never lectured, and did not reside in Cambridge during his occupancy of his Chair. Principal Librarian of the newly founded London Institution, 1806-8. Married, 1796, Mary Lunan, divorced wife of a book-binder, sister of James Perry, editor of the Morning Chronicle and close friend of Porson (she died without issue in 1797). Like Dr Johnson, he seems to have been 'generally ill-dressed and dirty.' A brilliant conversationalist, and the possessor of a remarkable memory, he would entertain his friends by quoting long passages from literature or even 'old forgotten Vauxhall songs.' 'He definitely advanced Greek scholarship in three principal respects: (1) by remarks upon countless points of Greek idiom and usage; (2) by adding to the knowledge of metre and especially of the iambic Trimeter; (3) by emendation of texts.' Edited Euripides' Hecuba (1797 and 1802); Orestes (1798); Phoenissae (1799) and Medea (1801); a transcript of Plotius from the Gale MS. His Correspondence was published in 1867. His work was hindered and his life shortened by intemperate habits. Died of apoplexy, Sept. 25, 1808, in his rooms at the London Institution, Old Jewry; buried Oct. 4, in the chapel of Trinity College. (D.N.B.; Sandys, History of Classical Scholarship; M. L. Graduated (1st Class) at King's College, Colombia Univ., 1758. Matric. Lent, 1765; B.A. 1767, as Provoost. Proficient in German, French, Hebrew and Latin, and while at Cambridge made a poetical version of Tasso. Also a good botanist. Ord. deacon (London) Feb. 25, 1766; priest, Mar. 25, 1766. Returned to America. Assistant Minister of Trinity Church, New York, but his sympathy 'as an ardent Whig,' caused embitterment among the Loyalist members of the parish, and he resigned, 1771. Retired to East Camp, Dutchess County, where he remained in straitened circumstances until 1784. Married, June 8, 1766, Maria, dau. of Thomas Botsfield, of Lakeland, Cork, and had issue. Elected Chaplain of the New York State Convention, Rector of St Michael's Church, Charleston, South Carolina, and R. of King's Chapel, Boston, but refused all three appointments. Chaplain of St Paul's and St George's Chapels of Trinity Parish, New York, 1784-86. Chaplain of the Continental Congress, 1785. Elected the first Protestant Episcopal Bishop of New York, 1786, and consecrated in Lambeth Palace, 1787. Conducted the service held in St Paul's Chapel, Apr. 30, 1789, following Washington's inauguration, which was attended by the President and the leading officials of the new Government. 'On this occasion he read prayers from the Proposed Book, no prayer-book having yet been officially adopted by the Episcopal Church.' Owing to the death of his wife and the suicide of his youngest son, his health was badly impaired, but the House of Bishops refused to accept his resignation. Died Sept. 6, 1815; buried in the family vault in Trinity churchyard. (I. A. Walker, 322; Dict. of American Biography, xv, 249 (Provoost).)
